

THE LISTENING PROGRAM®

improve your listening. improve your life.

The Listening Program® (TLP) is a music listening therapy, that provides engaging stimulation to improve performance in school, work and life.

When auditory perception is distorted—whether through illness, injury, developmental or other challenges—auditory processing problems can lead to academic, emotional, cognitive and social challenges.

Systematic training is provided through listening to psychoacoustically modified classical music which trains the brain to process sound more efficiently. This leads to improvements in:

- Learning
- Attention
- Communication
- Reading
- Listening
- Sensory Processing
- Social Engagement
- Behavior
- Self Regulation
- Musical Ability
- Brain Fitness
- Daily Living

“He was more affectionate than usual.”

“Her receptive and expressive language improved.”

“He was more social and seemed to connect to others in a whole new way.”

Numerous professional studies and clinical case studies indicate the measurable, life-changing results The Listening Program brings. Independent research studies are being conducted through universities, schools and learning centers, using various standardized test measures, which are demonstrating positive outcomes using TLP. For detailed information on TLP research and case studies, please visit www.advancedbrain.com.

Children, teens, adults and seniors can use the program in the home, classroom or workplace. Completely portable and easy to use, The Listening Program fits easily into anyone's schedule and only requires 15 to 30 minutes of daily listening.
